In consequence of Maj. Brock's order the police are picking up vagrants, tramps and suspicious characters found in large numbers, and prosecuting them in the Police Court. Eleven cases of this kind were on the roster to-day.

"AH, HOW WELL do I remember--it was in the bleak November," when I caught the cold that was wearing me surely and swiftly away," but I heard of Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup; took it, and am as well as ever.

JOSEPH E. S. GALLEY, a commercial agent, representing a firm of Philadelphia leather merchants, was tried in the Police Court for soliciting trade without a license and found guilty. Sentence suspended in order that he might procure a license.

Be sure and ask your newsboy for the Gazette. The Gazette office will be kept open until 12 o'clock noon to-morrow. An unusually large edition will be run off. A splendid opportunity for advertisers.

THE Union Veteran Corps, Capt. S. E. Thompson, will escort the Grand Army of the Republic, Department of the Potomac, William Gibson commanding, to Baltimore, to take part in the Orisole procession on Monday afternoon. The corps expect to turn out in full numbers, and will take a hand with them. Included in the Grand Army will be the Department Staff and J. A. Rawlins Post, No. 1; Kit Carson Post, No. 2; Lincoln Post, No. 3, and Morton Post, No. 4, and members of other posts.

PATRICK SULLIVAN, who escaped from the police after being arrested for a deadly assault on Mr. John Whiteford with a heavy stone, made another attack on him last night as he was coming out of his mission-house, corner of 1 and Second streets northeast, and would have probably murdered him if he had not found refuge in a store. The crowd of roughs pitched into a colored man, who also had to run with the rocks flying after him. They next attacked the little church again and broke the glass even through the wire screen. The poor inmates were terrified during the missionary's absence. Why cannot the police protect a church mission? Will Major Brock see to it?

Lutheran Synod.

The Lutheran Synod assembled at St. Paul's Church this morning, and transacted considerable business. At last evening's session Rev. Dr. Stork, of Gettysburg, made an address on "Foreign Missions," and Rev. H. W. Kuhn one on "Home Missions."

Considerable business was transacted at to-day's session of the Synod. The committee on communications reported a plan of enumeration, which was approved.

Resolutions of sympathy were adopted with Dr. A. Brown, theological professor of the Synod, also appropriate resolutions on the death of Rev. L. Keller, of Maryland.

Dr. Butler submitted a lengthy report from the educational committee, which was approved with an amendment to the amount to be sent to the Gettysburg Seminary.

It was ordered that $200 be sent to Dr. Repass, Salem, Va., for the use of indigent students.

The report of the advisory board of Home Missions recommended an appropriation of $300 for the benefit of the Church of the Reformation on Capitol Hill and $750 for the Oakland and Deer Park Congregations.

Reports on the Pennsylvania College at Gettysburg show its financial condition to be good.

An Explanation and a Denial.

Friends of Mr. Joseph E. Hayden have called upon THE CRITIC to say that we did him an injustice in the article published day before yesterday. THE CRITIC does not owe an injustice intentionally, and therefore gives Mr. Hayden the benefit of what his friends say in his behalf. They assert that he has had legal difficulties with his wife's mother on account of an alleged mismanagement of his wife's estate, and that he obtained a judgment against his mother-in-law for nearly $10,000. Coming down to the particulars of the statement alleged in THE CRITIC's article with reference to Mr. Hayden's putting his old grandmother into the street, the statement made to us is that Mr. Hayden has for more than a year supported the old lady at his residence on M street; that contemplating a visit to Europe, he suggested to his wife's grandmother that she should take up her abode with one of her sons, that he sent her furniture to the said son's residence, and that it was the son, not Mr. Hayden, who put the furniture in the street. That the latter is the fact there is no doubt, as the son, Mr. Grages, was to-day hauled up in the Police Court for obstructing the street by placing furniture thereon, and was fined for this offense.

Sent to the Grand Jury.

Charles Grages appeared in the Police Court to-day against Walter Brown, Philip Handy, and Alexander Dorsey, who attacked him on the afternoon of Monday, September 19, while he was pushing a wheelbarrow full of produce up Twelfth street, near U. After stealing apples from the cart, the gang cut Gray several times very seriously with a razor and shoemaker's knife, and pelted him with stones, and inflicted other injuries which almost proved fatal. The case was partially heard, and the defendants committed in default of bonds to await the action of the grand jury.

Funeral of Rev. L. F. Morgan.

The funeral of Rev. L. F. Morgan, formerly assistant pastor of St. Patrick's Church, and who died at Barnesville, Md., a few days ago, took place yesterday from St. Martin's Church, Baltimore. A solemn high mass of requiem was celebrated for the deceased, Father Keane delivered the funeral oration, paying a high tribute to the character of the deceased, with whom he had been intimate for over twenty years. Archbishop Gibbons pronounced the absolution at the close of the service, and the remains were then taken to Bonnie Brae Cemetery for interment.

Miss Matthews had a lovers' quarrel with Mr. Grago, and when it came her turn to shoot at the target a few minutes later she sent an arrow into the young man's breast. INDICTED FOR MURDER.

The Grand Jury Officially Declared that Charles J. Guiteau Murdered James A. Garfield.

At 1:30 p. m. the grand jury came into court and answered to their names and returned an indictment for murder against Charles J. Guiteau for the murder of James A. Garfield, late President of the United States. There were but few persons present when the thrilling indictment was read. It is probable that on Monday morning next the defense will enter plea in defense, probably assigning insanity as the motive of the assassin's action.

Our reporter asked District Attorney Calkins when he intended to arraign Guiteau for trial.

Col. C. "Oh, well, we'll try him as soon as we can."

Rep. "Now, Colonel, do you intend to arraign him or not on Monday?" The public have a right to know it.

Col. C. "My dear boy, the ways of the Lord and district attorneys are past finding out."

As far as the treatment of Mr. Guiteau is concerned the District Attorney says that he will not care to be taken of him than of any other criminal.

So far as the District Attorney's office is concerned, it is believed that there is no need of excessive precautions. The man will be carried before the Court, and the Court and the district attorneys are past finding out.

The indictment contains eleven counts. The first is as follows: The grand jurors of the United States of America, in and for the County of Monmouth and State of New Jersey, do hereby declare, upon their oath present, that Charles J. Guiteau, late of the County and District of Columbia, on the second day of July, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and eighty-one, with force and arms, did unlawfully, wilfully and feloniously, against the form of the statute in such case made and provided and against the peace and Government of the United States of America, did murder the mortal wound of James A. Garfield, of the mortal wound of the President of the United States.

The eleventh count is as follows: "At and in the County of Monmouth and State of New Jersey, do hereby declare, upon their oath present, that Charles J. Guiteau, late of the County and District of Columbia, within which said last-mentioned county the said dead body of him, the said James A. Garfield, was removed from the said County of Monmouth and State of New Jersey, brought into the County of Washington and District of Columbia, within which said last-mentioned county the said dead body of him, the said James A. Garfield, lay and remained from the said twenty-first day of September, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and eighty-one until the twenty-third day of September, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and eighty-one."

Each count closes with the usual form of indictment as follows:

And as the grand jurors aforesaid, upon their oath aforesaid, do say that the said Charles J. Guiteau, in the manner and by the means aforesaid, feloniously, wilfully and of his malice aforethought, did kill and murder against the form of the statute in such case made and provided and against the peace and Government of the United States of America."

Donnybrook Fair.

Quite a sensation was occasioned this afternoon by a Donnybrook fair encounter between two well-dressed, respectable-looking gentlemen in front of the Metropolitan Hotel. They were engaged in active conversation for several minutes, and suddenly inaugurated hostilities, each beating the other over the head with his individual cane. As the canes were light and the police prompt to interfere, neither of the two combatants was injured. One escaped into the hotel, the other was taken to Police Headquarters under arrest.

The name of the aggressor in the affair--who is now at Police Headquarters--was given as C. E. Smith.

Alcohol as a Food and Stimulant.

Medically speaking, remarks Dr. Lewis Shapter in a contemporary, the chief remedial use of alcohol is as a food, and as a present stimulant to a circulation which, without its temporary aid, might disastrously fail. As a food there is probably no other substance which can effectually perform the same function. In typhoid fever, for example, a fever of protracted but limited duration, where the vital functions tend proportionately to fail and endanger the power of resistance until the close, alcohol may confidently be looked to as the most readily assimilated food and most effectual temporary stimulant.

Considering the unfrequent events of this world, we should be taught that no human condition should inspire men with absolute despair.

AMUSEMENTS.

Ford's Opera-house.

With this afternoon's matinee and to-night's performance, Mr. Charles E. Ford's excellent company ends its two week's engagement in Washington. While we still hold that "Patience" is an opera of little worth in any respect, we cannot speak too highly in praise of "Mascotte." It is perfect in every sense, and most perfectly presented by Ford's troupe.

Next week Petroleum V. Nash's comedy of "Widow Bedott" will hold the boards, with Mr. Charles B. Bishop in the title role. We never saw much in this comedy until Bishop took part in it. His conception of the character is fine and finely enacted. The general support is good.

National Theatre.

"Michael Strogoff"--the grand spectacle play, dramatized from Jules Verne's work of that title--will be presented at the National Theatre next week in magnificent style. This drama is under the supervision generally and performed by the famous Kiraly brothers. It has produced a pronounced sensation in Europe and in New York. It is a majestic dramatic spectacle. The author is by Professor E. Von Suppe, from La Scala Theatre of Milan; twenty corymbes; a magnificent corps de ballet, and a host of other attractions.

The company presenting "Michael Strogoff" is excellent, including Mr. Wm. Russell (a brother of the handsome George Russell of London), the character comedian of London; Mr. Edson, the well-known American comedian; Miss Ellie Wilton, of the Union Square; Miss Ada Nelson, of England; Mrs. F. L. Cushman, the famous premier assoluta; Mademoiselle Bazzano, from La Scala Theatre of Milan; twenty corymbes; a magnificent corps de ballet, and a host of other attractions.

The Theatre Comique.

promises to be very attractive next week. "The Black Hand," by Frank Jones, supported by the handsome sonnettes, Miss Alice Montague, will be the drama during the week, and among the variety specialties Mr. Jake Budd's new olio, "The Telephone; or, Where Are We Now?" will be a vast hit.

THE COURTS.

Success.

The harvest season has come to an end, and the husbandman now rests from his labors and counts up the blessings that God has bestowed upon him--blessings of fruit and grain, of plenty at home and something to spare for those who have not of their own. It is fitting that at this time we should rejoice and return our thanks to Him who sends both seedtime and harvest, who "maketh the grass to grow upon the hills and grain for the use of man; who giveth to the beast his food, and feedeth the young ravens that call upon Him."

The Feast of Tabernacles--with its booths and waving palms--recalls the mercies of Him who watches over Israel and affords a special time and occasion for thanksgiving. All over the world, the Sons of Israel are preparing, as the Sabbath opens, to keep this high festival. Their hearts go out to Him with special joy as they look upon the favored homes of this land. Though there is persecutions abroad, here the most sacred ones must erect their tabernacles of shelter and relief for those who have to flee. Well may we exclaim, as we look about at the close of this harvest season, "Blessed are the people who are in such a case; yea, happy are the people who have the Lord for their God."

The Mushroom Zone.

New Zealand has been turned into good account for fungi. In all of the rest of the world the fungus production is partly poisonous and partly harmless, but New Zealand's varieties appear to be all good for human food. There is no question of mushrooms and toad-stools, or separation of the good from the bad. It is all gathered and mostly shipped to China, where it is used to flavor the favorite soup of the Chinese, who never inquire whether there is poison in the pot or not. Of late years the fungus trade of New Zealand has grown greatly and now averages 300 tons annually. But it brings only a cent a pound to the gatherers, while it costs 20 to 25 cents per pound in Hong Kong and San Francisco.

It is a fact that the country never had so much money and prosperity as at the present moment, but a good many individuals who have always been strangers to work cannot or rather will not believe it.
